A DelightBy Janelle This delightful book was fun to read, since our six feline family has many similar traits...never a dull moment...trying to keep their appetites satisfied"! Seems as if the first step in making permanent friends is the feeding, and the next is the brushing along with talking, then more treats.

Each has its own personality and expressions...some new deeply and loudly...others never mature beyond squeaking...rather amusing, really1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. Best yet!By Granny C JAs a lifelong cat lover (and my life thankfully has been long and if I am blessed will be much longer, I found this to be one of the best books about cats yet! Mr. Longsden's true love of the species and his ability to observe his pets behavior and become wonderfully anthropomorphic about it is so amazing. I too am very anthropomorphic about cat behavior (they always know exactly what they are doing and why) and those of us who listen are always entertained. we laugh and we cry over our wonderful feline friends. By the way, I also love dogs and currently have one of each, aging like me who have been each other's BFFs for 12 years now.! Watching our furry friends I believe can lead us to a better understanding of ourselves.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. Five StarsBy Christina E. AndersonAnother tongue-in-cheek enjoyable read by Deric Longden.

Throughout the 1990s, Deric Longden has shared his life with Aileen Armitage and four cats: Thermal, Tigger, Frink, and shabby old Arthur. And the cats have found that sharing a life with Aileen can be a very painful business. She hardly ever trips over them these days, but they are always in danger of being mistaken for a cardigan or inadvertently locked away in the basement. Ever since Thermal came in from the cold to enter his life, Deric has seen his world increasingly taken over by cats. What with planning their menus, entertaining their friends, listening to their worries, and observing their adventures, he has little time left over for his professional life as a writer. But there are rich rewards. One way or another, the cats that Deric and Aileen share their lives with are an endless source of interest and laughter. Few writers have found so much enjoyment in the company of cats, and none has written better about their charm and the fascinating range of their personalities.
