This fully illustrated book of 32 poems shows the off-kilter humor of Bud Grunion as he documents life in small town Nebraska. Bud has a unique way of seeing the people in his town. Sometimes it's funny, sometimes it's strange. But you'll know it's true, because you just can't make this stuff up. You definitely want this book on your shelf. You will go back to it time after time for years to come.

About the Author Bud Grunion was born and raised in a small town on the plains. Early on, he had a passion for pop music and an obsession with tape recorders. In grade school, he'd write poems about things that mattered to him--dogs, horse races, police chases. Bud kept mostly to himself, but every so often he would emerge from his cave and present something he'd been working on either on tape or on paper. You never knew what to expect. Not much has changed over the years, except he now has a wife, a son and a grandson. He still calls Nebraska home.
